THIRD BIENNIAL ROCHESTER GRADUATE EPISTEMOLOGY CONFERENCE

SEPTEMBER 24-25, 2004

Keynote Speaker: Timothy Williamson

Wykeham Professor of Logic, Oxford University

Commentator: Richard Feldman

Professor of Philosophy, University of Rochester

The philosophy department at the University of Rochester is proud to announce the Third Biennial Rochester Graduate Epistemology Conference, to be held September 24-25, 2004. We welcome submissions in the field of analytic epistemology, broadly construed. We also welcome hybrid epistemology papers which are also (partially) in the fields of ethics, the philosophy of mind, philosophy of language, philosophy of religion, or metaphysics.

REQUIREMENTS: Papers should be no more than 4000 words (approx. 13 pages), excluding notes. Submissions should also include a second sheet with an abstract (200 words or less). Papers should be suitable for blind review: include a detachable cover page with the paper's title, author's name, mailing address, email, phone number, school affiliation, and word count; please omit any self-identifying marks within the body of the paper.

DEADLINE: Papers must be received by August 5, 2004. Electronic submissions preferred. Papers should be either emailed as an attachment to UR_Epistemology@yahoo.com in Word, WordPerfect, Rich Text, or LATEX format, or mailed to: Graduate Epistemology Conference, Department of Philosophy, Lattimore Hall, University of Rochester, Rochester NY 14627.

Travel stipends are available and will be awarded on a competitive basis—please indicate on your cover page whether you are interested. If interested in commenting, or for more information, contact Chris Tillman at ctmn_at_mail_dot_rochester_dot_edu. The conference website is <http://www.courses.rochester.edu/cullison/epistemology/>.
